Dear Sir,

I am sorry that none of the trustees or yourself have been able to visit my Art-Agency according to the promise contained in your letter.
The gallery will be open until Thursday night the 28th inst., after which I am moving to permanent offices at 49 Fifth Avenue, New York.

I really think the collection of ^{original} drawings (Antichita Romane) and the Piranesi are worthy of your attention, and are certainly offered at a low price.

The only large oil painting which I have is a thoroughly good specimen of the English School of Landscape.

Hoping to see you before I leave

Dear Sir: —

I enclose one dollar; Please accept & send a photograph of Van Thoren's Lost Loga ("Cri au perdu") to Mr. E. K. Chipman, Sandwich, Mass.
Barnstable Co.

Please kindly protect the copy with double pasteboard - for the Sandwich mail-bag requires many knocks & handlings, before it reaches its destination.

(The copy of the dogs I received in Oct. came safely except a slight jamming of the corners.) Should like to have Mr. Chipman's copy reach him as soon as possible, and in the best condition.

I remain,

Very respectfully yours,

Dear Sir:

I have this letter:

The picture of "Shakespeare" belongs to a young gentleman in Morgantown Md. C. F. McKesson by name - who is anxious to sell it: he wrote me a few days ago. that he had expressed it. as I understood him, to me. and I knew no better until to day: at his request I will tell you all I know of the picture:

His father. was, in ante bellum days. a very wealthy man; and about thirty years ago. being in Charleston S. C. at some sale of pictures. of some one who had quite a collection. he bought this picture. for some fabulous price.

ever since - and at the death of Mr McKee a few years ago - his son - felt him to it - he had the misfortune a short time ago to have his house burned - and being in reduced circumstances he conceived the idea of selling this picture. He does not, nor do I. know the artist - but he has been told by several persons, who professed to know that it was a fine work.

told him it was the finest picture of Shakespeare he had seen, and told him of some man in New York who had a collection. Mr McKim does not know the value, but was I think induced by representations of others to send it to you. to see and know if you would buy. or assist him in selling. he wrote asking me to sell it to you if I could. but fixing no price.

about such matters. hence can and you will buy it. I will be glad to sell to you for him - or if you decline purchasing. if you will kindly let me know of any one who would probably do so, I will be obliged. Senator Vance told me that you had had to pay $2.75 express freight on it. if you do not buy. I will get the picture and refund to you the amt. for

Dear Mr. Macleod

Your esteemed favor with the criticisms on the engraving were duly received and I at once proceeded to act on your suggestions. I have sent a proof with these corrections to Mr. Corcoran and have also written him pointing out what corrections he should look for. They are these - I think the pupils of the eyes will now be found directed exactly to the same spot, the eyebrow straightened and the turning upward at the end of it removed as much as the original photo. will warrant. The shadow under the locks of hair is strengthened not only near the ear but also near the high light on the forehead. I could not discover how I could improve the right hand, in the original the turned up edge of the coat intercepts the view of the hand and I thought a change in that particular would be an improvement. Please examine the new proof along with the old, and judge of the effect of what I have done.

Yours truly
John Sartain

W. Macleod Esq^r:

Dear Sir

Yesterday I succeeded in bringing the portrait plate of M. Corcoran to a finish, that is, excepting such corrections as may be pointed out for its further improvement. Somehow I have mislaid the autograph signature you sent me and shall be obliged if favored with another. When I was about to pack the proofs to send yesterday I found they were not hard dry, so rather than risk their suffering detriment they did not get dispatched till this morning (by the Adams Exp)

I have taken great pains with this plate and believe it to be my best of this kind. Every part is covered with line or with stipple except the tints of the flesh and the white linen, then mezzotint over all. But the shadows as well as drawing of the face and other flesh &c were carefully modeled in stipple first, and the style of this mixed work produces in this plate what I understand as best, and you wrote for the best. The tint between the lines makes the work more like a picture than if the white paper showed between. You, as an artist, will understand and appreciate this. Effect and result is everything, not technique or tradition.

The plate took longer than I reckoned on but I have worked with great diligence, and hope my labor may prove satisfactory.

Yours truly

John Sartain.

Description of a painting by Remmey.

Rec'd Jan. 23

2776

Description of Picture

Size

The canvas measures 5ft. across and 8ft. in length making with frame a picture 6ft. by 9ft.

Presentation

The condition of the picture is good as a whole. During the late war it received several injuries which although repaired still show in certain lights.

History

Painted by Romney in London in 1786.

The original Mrs Roger Smith nee Rutledge a sister of the signer of the Declaration of Independence, and of John Rutledge the Dictator. — Roger Smith being a descendant of the Landgrave of that name in Colonial times.

The picture is said to be the finest specimen of English Art on this side of the Atlantic. The coloring as fresh as when it left the artist's hands.
